

Report

SOS From Forever Rollercoaster

August 20, 2023

by Mahati V. (United States)

PROMPT: Flash Fiction Competition 2023  3

GROUP: Write the World

We have been loop-de-looping for months. We should have known. The poster that lacked details. The rainbow man who cackled, "Forever!" when asked about the duration. Some people have attempted to escape. The temptation every time we rushed past the red button was too much for them. Ironically, the thrill seekers, most eager to get on, were also the most eager to get off. My own brother threw up one time too many. Nobody sees us.

Our sole chance for freedom now lies with you, the reader of this note.
I beseech you to press that red button. SOS.

Message to Readers

Since this contest focuses a lot on brevity, I had to cut down on a lot of content. If you can tell me which parts of my story don't flow so well because I focused on brevity I would be very grateful.

Thank you!

First Piece

United States

Flash Fiction